This unique, Grade II listed property is of historical interest and dates back to the 16th century. It is an impressive family home, full of character and retains many original features including stone flooring to the entrance reception hall and exposed wooden beams throughout. The property has since been extended and combines period charm with contemporary design.

Tucked away in a discreet setting, the property is set amid private grounds. The drive leads to a large parking area and an extensive lawn in front of the house. The garden wraps around the rear of the property and leads onto a wonderful, gated courtyard that is flanked by a brick boundary wall and features an Indian sandstone patio, ancient fig tree and vegetable garden.

With over 2,600 square feet of living space, the property offers considerable accommodation laid out over two floors. Unlike many homes of this era, this desirable family house enjoys lovely high ceilings and plenty of natural light. It also offers versatile living with four receptions and four bedrooms so everyone can enjoy their own space. What is most striking are the generous room sizes and the five feature fireplaces throughout the property across both levels.

The property is completed by a downstairs shower/utility room, a kitchen breakfast room with granite worktops, integrated appliances, range cooker and pantry, a large family bathroom on the upper floor along with a spacious open landing and dual loft spaces.

The property is situated in Hookwood, nearby the villages of Charlwood and Norwood Hill and the market town of Reigate. It is close to the thriving town of Horley, which offers residents an excellent mix of local amenities and great transportation links. Gatwick is only 10 minutes away and Horley mainline railway station provides fast services to London and the south coast.
